ED Courses for the FACULTY OF SCIENCE

CAES9820

Academic English for Science Students *

CAES9821

Professional and Technical Communication for Statistical Sciences *

Designed to enhance your use of academic and professional English in your chosen fields, our two courses address literacy needs arising from different science disciplines.

- CAES9820: Non-statistical disciplines
- CAES9821^#: Decision Analytics, Risk Management, Statistics

^ This course is compulsory for Actuarial Science and Applied AI majors.

Knowledge of linear statistical modelling, covered in courses such as STAT3600 and STAT3907, is recommended but not assumed. Students majoring in mathematics may take this course if they are interested in broadening their computational and analytical skills acquired from their discipline to include effective communication in data analytics.

When will I take these courses?

As part of your BSc graduation requirements at HKU, you may select this after your first year of study, at any time before graduation.

Why do I need to take them?

- ✿ You will need to be able to effectively use linguistic and rhetorical devices in your field of study and future profession, often for the purpose of communicating (sometimes complex) scientific concepts and outcomes of data analysis to cross-disciplinary and non-specialist professional audiences.

How will I learn them?

- ✿ Through the analysis of linguistic and rhetorical features in different texts in a variety of fields of scientific inquiry (CAES9820 and CAES9821)
- ✿ By producing oral and written texts which are constructed with the appropriate content, structure and language features, so that they are fit for their intended academic or professional purposes and audiences (CAES9820 and CAES9821)
- ✿ By identifying your own language learning needs, developing and carrying out a plan to meet those needs, as well as reflecting on and evaluating your progress (CAES9820)
